

The Shores Leadership Bio - Aaron Krumvieda

Born and raised in Sioux Falls, Aaron grew up in the construction industry working for his father Gary (Krumvieda Construction, Inc.) at a young age. Aaron studied Math, Physics, and Pre-Architecture At Augustana College, Professional Architecture and Construction Management at the University of Minnesota College of Architecture, and Design Perspective at the California Institute of Art. Aaron married his wife Stephanie in 2009, and they have recently become the proud parents of their first child.

Aaron began his career by starting his own residential construction company at the age of 24. Throughout his history in business ownership, Aaron developed a passion for entrepreneurship and creating innovative approaches to unmet needs. He currently serves as the the President of Krumvieda Companies, and is a member of the Home Builders Association of the Sioux Empire.

Aaron is the cofounder of Old Orchard Mantel Company, which produces custom wood products for commercial and residential projects. He is the cofounder of Integrated Surface Technologies, a company that creates solutions to exterior surface applications in the building industry; he developed and obtained the patent for the core product, which is a revolutionary approach to siding and roofing. Aaron is also the cofounder of SKB Properties, a company that invests in residential income properties.

Aaron enjoys spending time with his family and friends, hunting and fishing, traveling, and working with cutting edge technologies such as 3D design and printing, solar and wind applications, and environmental sustainability. He is passionate about applying his artistic and creative abilities along with his extensive knowledge to people's living spaces. Aaron has a formidable work ethic, and a strong ability to think outside the box.
